

WANDERING by the NUMBERS

750,000 Canadians

have Alzheimer's and other dementias

1.4 million Canadians will have dementia by 2031 in the absence of a cure

900,000 of them will wander

 6 in 10 people with dementia, (450,000 Canadians) will wander at least once

$1,500 – estimated per hour cost of a missing person search for a dementia wanderer

$33 billion – cost per year to Canadian economy in dementia-related medical expenses and lost earnings

$293 billion – cost per year
to Canadian economy by 2040 if nothing changes

Canada does not have a national dementia strategy, though Ottawa is discussing plans for one

Sources: Alzheimer's Association, Alzheimer Society of Canada, Project Lifesaver

